Because respondent's blood was drawn over ninety minutes after he began driving, under the statute he was committed to medical care. The linchpin of respondent's position is the language of the statute creating the bar to such admission. Section 2 of the act provides in pertinent part: "(A) A person who operates or attempts to operate any motor vehicle in violation of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) or paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this section is guilty of a civil infraction. "(B) A person who is a medical patient or a passenger of a motor vehicle operated in violation of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) or paragraph (3) of subsection (b) of this section is guilty of a civil infraction." 235 ILCS 5/6-303 (West 2004). 7 (1) is guilty of a civil infraction if a Montefiori, musician Jay Z sat down with Eddie Rosario at the Big Apple Pops benefit on Friday to discuss his new “Legends of Summer” project, premiering at the July 4 concert on PBS as well as the New York Music Seminar, his moment of reflecting on his life in a 2014 interview with Vulture (and during a surprise cameo on Late Night with Seth Meyers) and his friendship with Lamar Odom. “I was so grateful that Ray Lewis listened to me. That’s what I wanted from the start. He was so patient with me. We would talk about the future, we’d talk about the past. He was a great father and role model,” he said. “I wasn’t on the right path, I was on the wrong path. I didn’t necessarily have great guidance.” Z on his “Legends” and “It’s Always Been You” songs: “The tone of the music is really optimistic. It’s about — There’s more of a hopefulness and positivity to it. I can't help but feel like I'm in a certain state of mind right now. You know what I mean? It's music that I really feel. My girlfriend [Beyonce] was like, 'Let me hear it.' And she was like, 'I'm in, baby.' I can't help but think I've made some sort of musical breakthrough." Z on "It's Always Been You": "The question that I always get is, 'When are you going to be a good father?' And I'm like, 'I'm always going to be a good father.' I'm a father figure to me." Z on his friendship with Lamar Odom: "I felt that he had given me the oxygen that I needed."
